Sir:

Applicants have received the Notice of Allowance and Notice of Allowability including Examiner's Amendments and reasons for allowance from the U.S. Patent Office dated October 22, 2007.

While applicants appreciate the allowance of this application, applicants note that the Statement of Reasons for Allowance includes distinctions over certain documents based on certain limitations paraphrased or restated from applicants' claims and also includes extra emphasis on various claim terms. Applicants state for the record that they do not necessarily agree with the Examiner that the cited distinctions are the only reasons that the allowed claims are patentable. Moreover, applicants would like to clarify that, to the extent that the actual limitations of the claims differ from the limitations as paraphrased or restated differently by the Examiner, each claim is limited only by its actual limitations (including limitations of any claim or claims from which it depends) and not the paraphrased or restated limitations. No other limitation other than that recited in the claims is to be read into any claim.

Respectfully submitted,
